Overview
Graduate School Policies and Procedures (http://catalog.ucdenver.edu/cu-denver/graduate/graduate-school-policies-procedures/) apply to this program

The unique intellectual challenge of anthropology is to integrate knowledge from many disciplines for a global understanding of cultural and biological diversity in the past and the present. Individual courses in cultural and biological anthropology and archaeology cut across lines of the humanities and social and natural sciences. Because of this integrative perspective on the human condition and the training provided in objectively assessing cultural patterning and social interaction, anthropology graduates have a strong and versatile base for careers in a variety of fields. Graduates of our program get jobs as professional archaeologists; work in international NGOs as researchers in the health sciences and public health, as college teachers and in international development; while others have been very competitive in prestigious PhD programs (e.g., Berkeley, Pennsylvania, McMaster's, Oxford, Stanford).

Specialties and Tracks
CU Denver's Department of Anthropology provides an outstanding graduate education in anthropology, giving students a broad yet thorough grounding in the three major subfields of anthropology, as well as specialized instruction in one or more research orientations in which department faculty have substantial expertise. The graduate faculty in anthropology are particularly known for their research and publications in medical anthropology; immigrant health and immigration; disability; maternal and child health; human growth and development; human evolution; modern human variation; human locomotion; experimental economics; visual anthropology; ethnicity and identity; political economy; Southwestern, Mexican and Neanderthal archaeology; paleoenvironment; and urban and community anthropology. Across the specializations there is a strong emphasis on research design and methodology, providing students concrete job-related skills. Area studies emphases include Latin America, East Africa, the Mediterranean, and the US Southwest. Students also have opportunities to study abroad, to participate in one of several field schools, and to gain international research experience.

The graduate program in Anthropology is an active participant in the Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education’s Western Regional Graduate Program (www.WICHE.edu (http://www.WICHE.edu)). Students from WICHE states (Alaska, Arizona, California, Hawaii, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Washington and Wyoming) pay in-state tuition while maintaining residency in their home state. Just indicate in your application packet that you wish to take advantage of this program.

Financial Aid
The department offers limited tuition assistance, teaching assistantships and research assistantships for graduate students on a semester-by-semester basis. Appointment is competitive and is typically based on a student’s academic credentials, GRE scores and preparation in anthropology. Contact the department for details. For information on grants, federal work-study programs, scholarships and loans, contact the CU Denver Financial Aid Office (https://www.ucdenver.edu/student-finances/financial-aid/).

Application Process
Application is open to holders of a BA, BS or higher degree in any field. We welcome applications from individuals pursuing particular interests and careers, especially those related to one of the areas of concentration noted above. The departmental deadline for receipt of all application materials is February 15 for admission the following fall.

Acceptance to the program is competitive and based on the application as a whole rather than preference in any one area:
- an undergraduate record of good quality (3.0 GPA or higher for all undergraduate studies)
- prior training in Anthropology
- GRE scores (verbal, analytic and quantitative)
- three letters of recommendation
- a statement of the applicant’s goals, both in graduate school and in their career, after completing the degree
- one copy of transcripts from all undergraduate/graduate institutions attended

If you have no prior anthropology training, we encourage you to gain the necessary background as a non-degree student before applying to the graduate program.

1 Students may be admitted without prior anthropology training, but may be required to make up deficiencies without graduate credit during the course of their graduate study.
