

NON-DEGREE STUDENT ADMISSION

Applicants who do not plan to complete a University of Colorado Denver bachelor's degree, may be admitted as non-degree students. Applicants that have already earned a bachelor's degree, should apply as a non-degree graduate student. To change from non-degree to degree-seeking status, applicants need to apply as an undergraduate or graduate degree-seeking student and meet the admission requirements of the intended program of study.

Non-degree eligibility requires a minimum 2.000 cumulative GPA.

Note: For further information on financial implications for non-degree students, please visit the financial aid (<http://catalog.ucdenver.edu/cu-denver/undergraduate/student-finances/financial-aid/>) page.

How to Apply as a Non-degree Student

1. Complete and submit your application online at www.ucdenver.edu/admissions (<http://www.ucdenver.edu/admissions/>).
2. Pay your $50 nonrefundable application fee.
3. No additional credentials are required.
