Overview

Undergraduate Information

Sociology is the scientific study of groups, social processes, social institutions and behavior. The major in sociology is designed to familiarize students with these areas through an understanding of theory, methods and data analytic procedures employed within them. Three certificate options at the undergraduate level allow students interested in gaining concentrated study in a sub-area of sociology to do so. They include: Criminology; Families and Social Welfare; and Community Health and Medicine. All students majoring in sociology, regardless of whether they pursue a certificate (or multiple certificates), develop a strong foundation in the basics of the discipline, including the use of qualitative and quantitative research methodologies and theory.

The major prepares students for either graduate study or the pursuit of a career immediately upon completion of the BA degree. The required Senior Capstone course is a critical resource in preparing for either option. Graduates with a Sociology BA are employed in a variety of professional areas, including the criminal justice system, education, health and social services, and with state and local government agencies. The department has developed the following rationale for courses offered:

1. Lower-division courses (for majors and non-majors)
   a. 1000-level courses provide an introduction to the broad sociological perspective as it applies to social life, social systems and society.
   b. 2000-level courses introduce students to somewhat more specific content areas: social psychology, deviant behavior and social inequalities, etc.

2. Upper-division courses (3000 and 4000)
   a. 3000-level courses serve as advanced surveys of some specific area of concentration. They are designed to acquaint students with the issues, methods, concepts and theoretical frameworks employed in the content area. Such courses as medical sociology, criminology, sociology of family, and race and ethnicity are offered at this level. Many of these courses are open courses, in that students from other departments and colleges are encouraged to enroll in them.
   b. 4000-level courses are devoted to a more detailed in-depth examination of specific issues, approaches and concepts within the previously identified content areas. These are advanced courses and are geared more directly to sociology and social science majors.
   c. Sophomore standing is required for enrollment in all 3000-level courses, and junior standing is required for enrollment in 4000-level courses.

The department requires that SOCY 1001 Understanding the Social World be completed prior to any of the major’s core requirements (SOCY 3001 Inequalities in Social World, SOCY 3115 Quantitative Methods & Analysis, SOCY 3119 Qualitative Methods, SOCY 3140 Sociological Theory and SOCY 4830 Senior Capstone: Worklife Practices & Policies).

Departmental Honors

Students wishing to graduate with departmental honors in sociology (cum laude, magna cum laude, or summa cum laude) must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.0 (while enrolled at the University of Colorado Denver) and a 3.2 or higher in all sociology courses. Additionally, departmental honors requires the student to complete 6 hours of SOC 4880, Directed Research, under the supervision of a Sociology faculty member. This independent research is spread over at least 2 semesters and serves as the basis for the honors thesis. The thesis is presented in a departmental colloquium at least six weeks before the end of the semester in which the student intends to graduate. Interested students are encouraged to contact the Undergraduate Program Director, Dr. Maren Scull, prior to the beginning of their senior year if they intend to pursue departmental honors.
